

SAVE the Babies!
Contribute to the
Milk and Ice Fund

TULSA DAILY WORLD

FINAL EDITION
4 o'Clock A.M.

VOL. XIII, NO. 299.

TULSA, OKLAHOMA, MONDAY, JULY 21, 1919.

10 PAGES.

PRICE 5 CENTS.

FINAL PEACE TERMS GIVEN TO AUSTRIA

O. U. R. CARS WILL RUN AGAIN TODAY

Service Suspended All Day Sunday Following Shooting Saturday Night.

TRouble NOT ANTICIPATED

Railroad Officials Say Further Demonstrations Are Not Expected Today.

WOUNDED MEN IMPROVING

Deputy Sheriff and Union Man in Hospital Recovering From Wounds.

"Service on all lines will be resumed tomorrow," was the tacitonic statement of Superintendent R. V. Miller of the Oklahoma Union Banking company last night. After the demonstration in West Tulsa early Saturday night, which resulted in the shooting of Deputy Sheriff Maynard and Hubert Blythe, when a crowd of 200 persons gathered near the tracks and some one obstructed the passage of the car over the bridge by placing an iron rail across the right, the operation of all O. U. R. cars stopped and no service was attempted all day Sunday.

All was quiet Sunday; no demonstrations of any kind occurred. Disturbances and demonstrations were almost continual all day Saturday preceding the outbreak in the evening.

"Anticipate no further disturbances," was the statement of Sheriff James Wooley last night. "We are taking no extra precautions, because we expect no more trouble. We prefer to let them fight it out between themselves. Of course, if they anger the public we will have to take a hand."

Mashfield and Blythe, who were shot in Saturday's disturbance, are much improved at the Oklahoma hospital. The wounds of neither of the men are considered serious, both having been shot in the arms.

No greens will be made as the result of the Saturday night shooting, officials said. According to Sheriff Wooley, one knows just who started the shot, but his opinion they came from some one in the crowd, while the testimony of several of the spectators indicate that they were fired by Deputy Reynolds.

Reports not eight from Sapulpa indicated that the strike situation there remained unchanged. Cars were not in operation and there was no statement forthcoming from company officials to indicate when an attempt would be made to again re-open the service. Service in Sapulpa was discontinued Thursday night owing to a demonstration in which several hundred men marched through the streets. The demonstrators, numbering 200, marched the tactics adopted by the crowd, saying that nothing more was done, not remarkable for the agitation.

GREKS AND POLICE ENGAGE IN BATTLE

Sergeant Neal Hitt of Marine Recruiting Station Intervenes at Timely Moment.

GREAT SUGAR CROP IS PREDICTED FOR 1919

WASHINGTON, July 20.—While still delicate, sugar cane has shown signs of rapid growth, the latest reports indicate. In holding normal stocks of sugar, the government has forecast a large crop far above the average for the last six years.

The department of agriculture in its annual report on July 1 crop conditions predicted a crop of 2,216,000 tons.

Each tonning would be 147-lbs. per bushel, which would average the crop at 147-lbs. per bushel.

The best sugar forecast this year is higher than the record crop of 1918, which was 148-lbs. tons, but less than two tons below the average of the six years. The sugar beet crop this year is a record one.

In recent years the cane sugar beet has been about one-half the total production in the United States.

But this year the prospect is that it will be only about one-seventh.

STRIKE IN CHICAGO STOCKYARDS IS OFF

CHICAGO, July 20.—Two strikes went today when 10,000 men who work at the stockyards a week ago voted an open air mass meeting. They would appear tomorrow morning after the strike had been called, but the latter held off to the article.

Next the police department arrived. About the same time Phillip Paul, evidently a friend of Tom put in an appearance. Blackjacks and pistols were waved about the detainees. Tom tried to get the gun from Sergeant Hitt, but the latter held him to the article.

Then the dispatch says so-called "terror troops" of the police, who are known as members of the capital and that they have stormed the garrison, disarmed the troops of the Bela Kun government and distributed arms to the "ragged proletariat."

The leader of the "terror troops" was Bela Kun's personal guard of honor published an appeal for volunteers and the popular commissioners Yazy and Szemere, and the Commissary of Foreign Affairs Mose Alapay, the new leaders in control, have sent an ultimatum to Budapest Habicht ordering him to give up his office.

Apparently the enraged czar did not realize that he was in the hands of his enemies, but resisted so strenuously that it was necessary for the troops to shoot him before he could submit to be placed in the automobile.

The dispatch says the council of government is still undecided what to do with the man, but the troops believe he should be given a trial, and the police insist he should be sent to the military. No Italian committee has been formed. The last news came from Germany.

Now comes the legend today in Berlin, Germany, involving 100,000 workers.

CARRANZA AGREES TO GET CULPRITS

Will Exhaust Every Means to Punish Those Responsible for Murder of Ada Man.

CONSIDER SITUATION GRAVE

Attack on U. S. Sailors Results in Action by State Department to Punish Guilty.

DETAILS ARE NOT COMPLETE

Before Definite Steps Are Taken Government Asks for Investigation and Report.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—While the state and navy departments today awaited further information in regard to the attack and robbery of a boatload of American sailors from U. S. Cheyenne in the Temezi river, near Tamayo, July 8, the Mexican government, through its embassy here, informed the state department that it would "omit no effort" in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible" for the murder of John W. Correll, an American citizen, whose home was at Ada, Okla., and the attack on his wife in the Tamayo district last month.

This was made known today by members who declared the bill as now framed permitted wholesale robbing by persons reported to have but away enough wine and liquor to last them the rest of their lives. There was no statement from Chairman Volestead of the judiciary committee, in charge of the "dry" fight on the floor as to whether he would accept an amendment to this effect. The radicals said frankly they had little hope of changing the bill in this respect without the consent of the committee chairman.

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government, replying to representations made by the United States immediately after the attack on the Correll family, was reported, however, did little to lessen the gravity of the situation existing since yesterday when news of the attack on the American sailors reached the state department. Officials made no attempt after the message to release a statement concerning the Correll attack was received in the morning.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government, replying to representations made by the United States immediately after the attack on the Correll family, was reported, however, did little to lessen the gravity of the situation existing since yesterday when news of the attack on the American sailors reached the state department. Officials made no attempt after the message to release a statement concerning the Correll attack was received in the morning.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Phillips said:

"The Mexican government will omit no effort in the prosecution and punishment of those responsible for a crime so odious in the clearing up of which it will exhaust all means at its disposal."

The general view, however, was that the house had gone about as far as conservatively wise with draconian provisions. For the past week many efforts had been made to eliminate certain harsh provisions without success. Some of them said today if the right of home possession was stricken out, it would simply add to the public clamor against certain features of the bill by persons sincerely anxious to see strict enforcement of all prohibition laws, wartime and constitutional.

The message from the Mexican government in the Correll case was made public tonight by